

Signs of Spring coming?

So there I was on Wednesday March 3rd, working away in the boatshed, when I heard that familiar sound of Spring that I have heard every year for all my life. I rushed out, and there they were again. . . thousands and thousands of wild geese flying North again as they have done for thousands of years, and chatting away to each other.

Like a bit idiot I was down here waving both arms up to them and wishing them good luck and 'bon voyage'

It's so true. . . the wonders of this planet are here and now. WOW!

Soon, it will be the cuckoo, Hoopoo and the swallows.
It's a beautiful day here today. . . wall to wall blue sky.

Ron Gammons has sent in this item saying "this photo was taken by a friend in the Charente in France
. . . on seeing the photo I am sure many members will be saying "and about time too!"

The only concern is were the geese flying North based on met forecasts from Michael Fish saying Winter was over? Frankly there is not much sign of that at the moment! (5.3.10)
