A very wet day for the annual Veteran Car Run to Brighton

Ian Quarrington regularly attends the annual event with his wife Marion and reports "hardy V8 Register members John Bolt and John Taylor brought their Nightfire Red RV8s out today, proving that the colour doesn't run in the wet whereas Ian suggested to Marion that they should take her VW Golf and not his recently polished RV8 to watch the veteran cars on a very wet and windy day in West Sussex. Despite the weather the old timer cars seemed to be making the most of the day although the rain played havoc with ancient electrical systems causing some to retire early but conveniently within sight of the Victory Inn which provided warmth and refreshment. Clearly the two Johns decided to stay in the bus shelter for the duration whereas Marion put her Antarctic trip clothing to good use!" Does anyone know who owns the Oxford Blue RV8 in the photo above? (1.11.09)
