

Solving a storage problem in an MGB

Modern cars have an assortment of cup holders, trays and pockets for storing the things we all carry with us or need on a journey. The MGB, on the other hand, has a small compartment under the arm rest and the glove locker. Often items are placed behind the seats but can roll around, so after much searching Peter Spurrs bought this organiser which sits perfectly on the front seat. There is a tail which goes between the seat back and squab and holds it securely.

When properly in place, it sits up against the seat back. There are several configurable compartments along with netting side pockets.

It will be available from lots of places, including Amazon.
