

What does a typical Dunlop composite wheel look like?

Peter Ellis notes “the chrome rims (which were not too bad) were polished and the alloy centres were shot blasted, painted and then mirror polished (the ‘shiny bits’ only) so the wheels do not look identical to the original which had the ‘shiny bits’ machined.